QUIZ TIME

Below is a selection of quiz formats that would be fun in the classroom, school or youth movement setting. Please choose the format and selection of questions that best suit your circumstances.

TARGET

Dependent on the range of questions chosen and format of quiz.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES:

- All these games can be used as team building activities, testing activities or as a trigger at the start of another programme.
- All games can be used to build self-esteem and confidence.
- All games can be used to test the knowledge of the students of facts connected to Israel.
- Where a particular game has a unique or special learning objective this will be highlighted under the game.

SPOTLIGHT

This fun game encourages participants to think on their feet and draw on the range of knowledge they have about Israel.

NOTES:

- It can run as a whole game or be picked up and put down as an activity several times during a day, which can help to link other activities together.

RESOURCES:

A small soft toy that can be easily passed from child to child.

The questions and answers printed onto cards.

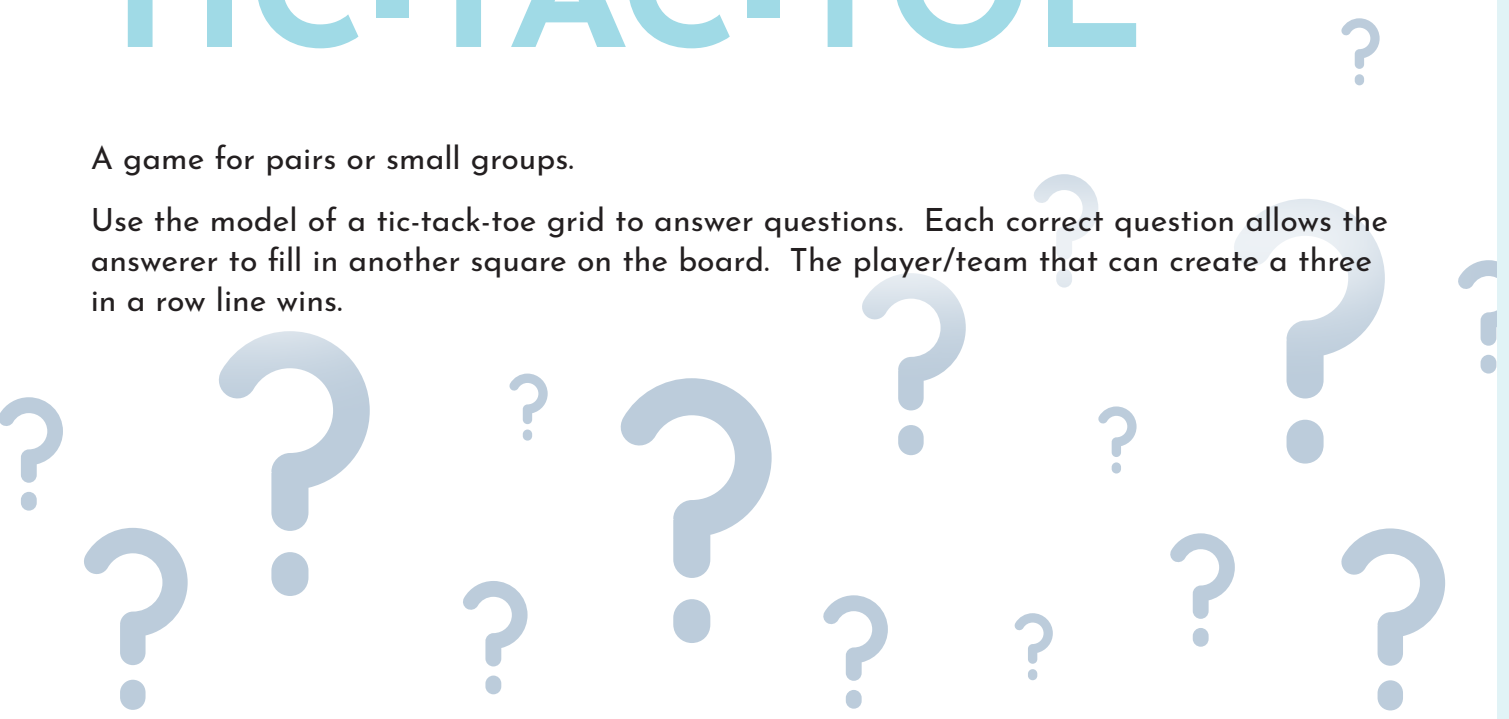

ACTIVITY:

Split the class or group into smaller groups and hand out a soft toy to each group. The person with the object in each group will start. You call out a question and the team have to decide on the answer. Only the person with the soft toy gives out the answer. If anyone else in the team calls out the answer, they lose a point (even if the answer is correct). The soft toy is handed in turn to each member of the group for each successive question, ensuring that each child gets an opportunity to call out the answer.

TIC-TAC-TOE

A game for pairs or small groups.

Use the model of a tic-tack-toe grid to answer questions. Each correct question allows the answerer to fill in another square on the board. The player/team that can create a three in a row line wins.

ISRAEL BLOCKBUSTER TRIVIA

Based on the famous TV children's quiz comedy show. This game also uses strategic thinking and planning of where you will move for you next question on the grid.

TARGET:

Upper KS2 and KS3

Children from 9 - 13 years of age, choose questions applicable to your teams age group

Time allowed: Approximately 20 minutes

ADVANCE PREPARATION: :

Print out colour coded beehive 'blockbuster' grid on A3 paper. This can also be adapted to be a human size floor game using team members as tokens for each hexagon if space and team sizes allow.

Choose the set of Trivia Questions that best suit the abilities of your group. If you have been engaging in a particular topic of Israel education, you can also use this format to create your own questions.

HOW TO PLAY:

The aim of the game is to create a sequence of 5 cells in the beehive. A cell is won for a team by answering a question correctly. A sequence may not be of the same colour, but all cells must link by at least one border line. Other teams can block a team from making progress and completing their sequence by choosing to answer a question that blocks their path.

THE GAME:

- The Quizmaster will divide the group into two teams.
- Each team will have a turn to try to answer a question, if the answer is wrong the question will go to the other team.
- On the first round a team will choose a colour and number question that they are playing for, e.g. Yellow 1 or Green 3. Should they get the question correct that cell becomes the first in their sequence.
- If the team answers incorrectly the cell remains open and the next team can try to answer, or the first team can attempt it again in their following turn.
- Teams can choose to answer a question that is not in their sequence, but that helps to block their opposing team.
- The winners will be the team that successfully makes their sequence.
